AWKWARD.

BY J. CHEEVER GOODWIN.

And so she's engaged to be married
To one of our class! I'm afraid
That if very much longer she tarried
Her degree would be O. M.—Old Maid.
"I know her?" Oh, yes, or I thought so;
But I'm more than inclined to believe
I was wrong. I'm the fellow she sought so,
But could not deceive.

"You're surprised?" I imagined you would be;
It's a thing I say little about;
"Twas as open a case as well could be—
"Did she love me?" There was a doubt.
Why, she just threw herself at my head, Bill!
But I knew she'd no heart and less brains;
And though money will settle a bread bill,
It won't wash off stains.

"You're astonished at this?" My dear fellow,
What the deuce did I care for her age!
Like women like apples—when mellow.
But the fact was, I knew every page
Of her history. "Fitted?" You'd think so.
There was Harry McKewen, sixty-three;
It was she that drove him to the drink so;
"Am I sure?" As can be.

She's a scheming coquette, and I know it;
She has the least bit of soul
Or an atom of truth. "Doesn't show it?"
No, her feelings are under control.
Then it's nonsense to say she has beauty,
I pity the fellow she's caught.
It must be a matter of duty
With him, or he's bought.

Who the deuce can it be? There's Fred
Baker;
You remember him?—scored for the Nine—
But there isn't much fear that he'd take her;
He wants blue blood and not a gold mine.
"Chicken," Jones? No, he's married. 'Twas funny.

How he ran a race with Jim Prout,
For the "beastie grade," was it? Money
He's got and the game.

"Tub!" Abbott was sweet on her. Sandy McGillum!—he must be the one;
By Jove, it's old Sandy, the dandy!"
Is it not he? I give up, then. I'm done.
Is it one of our class, are you sure,
That the vixen has seized for her prey?
Who's the fellow? Let's have it! What!
You're sure?

The deuce you say! —Scribner's.

"He's a brick!"—If it is slang, it is really classical slang. And yet of the thousands who use the term, how few—how very few—know its origin or its primitive significance. Truly, it is a heroic thing to say of a man to call him a brick. The word, so used, if not twisted from its original intent, implies all that is brave, patriotic and loyal.

Plutarch, in his life of Agesilaus, King of Sparta, gives us the origin of the quaint and familiar expression.

On a certain occasion an ambassador, from Epirus, on a diplomatic mission, was shown by the king over his capital. The ambassador knew of the monarch's fame—knew that though only nominally a king of Sparta, he was yet ruler of Greece—and he had looked to see massive walls rearing aloft their embattled towers, for the defence of the town; but he had found nothing of the kind. He marvelled much at this, and spoke of it to the king.

"Sire," he said, "I have visited most of thy principal towns, and I find no walls reared for defence. Why is this?"

"Indeed, Sir Ambassador," replied Agesi-laus, "thou canst not have looked carefully.
Come with me to morrow morning and I will show thee the walls of Sparta."

On the following morning the king led his guest out upon the plateau, where his army was drawn up in full battle array, and pointing proudly to the serried host, he said:

"There, sir, thou beholdest the walls of Sparta—ten thousand men, and every man a brick!"

THE SUNFLOWER.—To this plant many useful qualities are attributed, some of which are the following: It is, in its growing state, anti-miasmatic, and absorbs or scatters the malarious poison arising from swamps or marshes, insomuch that the inhabitants of houses well surrounded by sunflowers are said to escape ague and fever, and similar diseases prevalent in such localities where sunflowers are not cultivated. In France a medicine prepared from some portion of the sunflower is extensively used for the cure of diseases produced by malaria. The seed of the sunflower supplies a large amount of oil suitable to be used for lubricating machinery. The seed, when ripe, also furnishes very good food for horses and cattle as a substitute for grain, and the stalk of the plant is said to make good coarse fodder and to furnish an excellent material from which to manufacture coarse paper. The yield of the sunflower (when cultivated) is very large to the acre, both as regards seed and stalk. Attention was being turned to the cultivation of this plant in this State before the commencement of the late war, since which but little has been heard in regard to the subject.

TAKEN AT HIS WORD.—The Democrat and News (Dorchester county, Md.) has the following curious item:

A Kentonian from the Neck says: Some years ago Rev. Isaac Collins was preaching at Spedden's Church, Neck district, and was very much annoyed at his congregation turning to their seats to look at every new arrival. At last he could stand it no longer, and exclaimed:
"There is one special request I desire of this congregation, and that is that they will turn all the seats around so as to face the door before I preach here again." His request was attended to, and next Sunday when the Rev. Mr.
Collins walked up to the pulpit he looked around at the backs of his audience and was so overcome with emotion, that he just took his seat and spoke not one word that beautiful Sunday evening.
